Crapshoot: The Gamble with Our Wastes

(Jeff McKay) - 10:00 a.m.

McKay takes us on an eye-opening journey around the world to explore different approaches to sewage, starting at the 2,500 year old Cloaca Maxima in Rome, where the modern concept of sewers began. Filmed in Italy, India, Sweden, the United States and Canada, this bold documentary questions whether the sewer is alleviating or compounding our waste problem.

Farming the Seas (Steve Cowan) - 12:00 noon

Aquaculture was supposed to take the pressure off ocean fish stocks and help avert a global food shortage, but many experts now believe that some forms of "fish farming" are actually creating more problems than they are solving.

A Great Wonder: Lost Children of Sudan (Kim Shelton) - 1:15 p.m.

Shelton traces the extraordinary journey of three young Sudanese orphans, a fraction of the 17,000 so-called "Lost Boys" of Sudan, who have spent the majority of their lives either in flight from civil war or in refugee camps in Ethiopia and Northern Kenya. Over the course of 18 months, these youths recorded their own experiences using digital video cameras.

Juvies (Leslie Neale) - 2:45 p.m.

Neale documents the collapse of the American juvenile justice system. For two years, Neale taught a video production class at Los Angeles Central Juvenile Hall to 12 juveniles who were all being tried as adults. Juvies is the product of that class.
